DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over APA (applicant's prior art) in view of Harada (4624884).

APA substantially teaches the claim invention except that it does not show the bobbin, outer molding and conducting wires composed of an electrically-insulating material resistant to permeation by sulfur and means for preventing sulfur compounds from permeating the electrically insulating layer and attendantly reducing the formation of sulfur compounds on a surface of the conducting wire, thereby suppressing the reduction in adhesive strength of the electrically insulating layer to said conducting wire, wire breakage, and short circuiting between the conducting wires.

Harada teaches an electrically insulating layer resistant to permeation made of a material (thermal setting resin) coated on the bobbin (19), outer molding, and conductive wires (13 and 14) having means for preventing sulfur compounds from permeating the electrically insulating layer and attendantly reducing the formation of sulfur compounds on a surface of the conducting wire, thereby suppressing the reduction in adhesive strength of the electrically insulating layer to the conducting wire, wire breakage, and short circuiting between the conducting wires by means of thermal setting resin for the purpose of avoiding degradation of material under high field intensity environment. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at time the invention was made to modify the electromagnetic device of APA with the electrical insulating layer of Harada for purpose avoiding a drop in output during overheating due to copper loss resulting from a temperature rise and dispense with heat-resistance treatment of the wire in a coil of an electric motor

It also would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to select a thermosetting resin as the material of the insulating layer since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Ileshin, 125 USPQ 416.

Response to Arguments

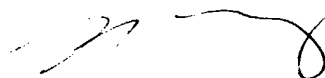

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-2 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
